The IDB's new framework aims to strengthen its safeguards by building on the existing IMF 'monitoring, evaluation and surveillance' (MESG) procedures, and in addition, bring in a more thorough assessment of the different types of risks and how they can be mitigated. IDB Executive Board members decided in November 2016 to develop a revised framework for the IDB's safeguards and risk management. This decision followed the collapse of Lehman Brothers in 2008, the flooding in Pakistan in 2010, the Arab Spring and the Eurozone debt crisis. The response of the IDB to these crises has been entirely dependent on its member states, and the crisis in Pakistan, for example, involved a direct IMF rescue package that precipitated a balance of payments crisis for the IDB itself. "The MESG framework had been operationalized to build capacity around counter-cyclical macroeconomic policy implementation by monitoring and evaluation, both at the country-level and at the regional level," says the IDB Secretariat's Chief Economist Dr. Daljit Kohli. "This meant that the institution was able to draw on the framework when a country-level member experienced a systemic crisis. This enabled the IDB to develop and enhance the capacity of its members,
