License: GNU General Public License V2.0.1. Field of the Invention The invention relates to a method of manufacturing semiconductor structures and semiconductor structures fabricated by the method. More particularly, the invention relates to a method of manufacturing a buried gate of a semiconductor structure and a semiconductor structure fabricated by the method. 2. Description of Related Art Due to the limitations of Moore's law, the size of metal-oxide-semiconductor (MOS) transistor has to be reduced to increase the operating speed and reduce the power consumption. However, the short channel effect may degrade the device performance. Therefore, to prevent the performance from being degraded, a buried gate structure is developed. The buried gate structure includes a polysilicon layer and a trench covered by the polysilicon layer. The buried gate structure is buried between a source region and a drain region of the semiconductor structure. The buried gate structure reduces the resistance of the source/drain regions. In addition, since the source/drain regions are electrically isolated from one another by the polysilicon layer, the buried gate structure enhances the electrical performance of the MOS transistor. In the conventional semiconductor structure with buried gate, a semiconductor substrate is etched to form a trench. A polysilicon layer is then formed on the bottom and the sidewalls of the trench. The polysilicon layer is then polished by a chemical-mechanical polishing (CMP) process until the surface of the polysilicon layer is level with the surface of the semiconductor substrate. However, the thickness of the polysilicon layer is reduced after the CMP process. The trench may be contaminated during the CMP process. In addition, the polysilicon layer has to be removed from the edge of the trench in a subsequent process. The removal of the polysilicon layer may cause a defect, which reduces the yield of the semiconductor structure. Maternal infection, transmission, and immunity. Infection of the maternal organism at any time before birth is a significant risk factor for disease in the offspring. Maternal factors, including infection, may induce a cascade of local and systemic changes that lead to fetal damage. Systemic maternal factors, including infection, may cross the placenta and reach the fetus during pregnancy.
