Is It Time For A New Hope? Is it time to channel your inner Jedi to fit in at work? Consider what tactics to use, and how to make those tactics work for you, to maximize your potential and sense of well-being. What can we do to combat the stress of work? How can we improve our focus and concentration at work? I recently blogged about the potential solution to managing stress in your business. The solution is a simple one. It really has little to do with your work. Instead, it's all about your state of mind. Taking care of yourself on a personal level is just as important as doing so on a business level. If you are stressed, you don't just stress your business, you stress yourself too. Being calm and in control helps you think more clearly and logically. It brings your focus back to the task at hand. It helps you make the best decisions, and it means you end up being a better worker and leader. How do we fit in at work? One thing we need to do is to practice learning self-control. This is something we all have in some degree, but we can do things to strengthen and improve our self-control. The key is to know when to stop, and to know what to do when we don't. Here are the four major tactics to help you channel your inner Jedi: 1. Be Kind to Yourself. Love and forgiveness are a powerful combination. We often fail to practice love and forgiveness, and we often don't forgive ourselves for failing to practice love and forgiveness. A key to managing stress, and avoiding burnout in the process, is to remember to be kind to yourself. Yes, you may sometimes want to yell or scream, but that doesn't mean you have to physically hurt yourself. It just means you are feeling frustrated or angry. It means that you need to let that out. But, when you are feeling that way, think before you act. Instead of being harsh, let your thoughts just flow through. That can be a difficult skill to master, but once you are able to do so, you'll find yourself with an added measure of peace and calm in your life. It doesn't mean you shouldn't feel angry. It just means that rather than feel like you have to express that anger in a destructive way, you can let it
