Q: Executing a javascript function in a modal window to clear value in a textbox I have a simple html code with a button that opens a simple modal window. The code

`$('#window button').on('click',function(){ $('#field').val(0); window.open('about:blank', 'window', 'width=400,height=400') });` I would like to use javascript to clear a value in a textbox that I have before opening the window. I have tried many options, like this: `$('#field').val(0); window.open('about:blank',`

'window',
'width=400,height=400') $(
document).ready(function()
window.open('about:blank',
    'window',
    'width=400,height=400')
$('#field').val(0); } );

But it does not work. How can I make this happen? A: The modal should be removed before opening a new one.

$('#window').on('hidden.bs.modal', function() {
    $('#field').val(0); } );
```
