Vestibular rehabilitation reduces fear of falling in older people: a randomized controlled trial. To examine the effect of a vestibular rehabilitation program on postural and gait stability and self-reported fear of falling in older people. Randomized controlled trial. University research laboratory. Ninety-four individuals with subjective dizziness (38 men, 56 women; mean age, 65.6 yrs; age range, 55 to 80 yrs). Participants were randomly assigned to a group that undertook 12 weeks of vestibular rehabilitation or a group that acted as a control. Participants in the treatment group underwent a standardized rehabilitation program consisting of exercises in stand and gait balance, which addressed deficiencies in balance, agility, and visual and vestibular coordination. The control group received education on vestibular problems and received written information about the general aspects of balance. Postural and gait stability, as assessed by the Cumberland Ambulation Category, Dizziness Handicap Inventory, timed up and go, and single-leg stance; self-reported fear of falling. e79caf774b

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an ink jet recording device and more particularly to an ink jet recording device in which ink from an ink tank is supplied to an ink jet head by a pump mechanism. 2. Related Background Art In an ink jet recording device, ink is selectively supplied from an ink tank to an ink jet head by a pump mechanism. The pump mechanism is constituted by an ink suction pump for sucking the ink from the ink tank and an ink supply pump for supplying the sucked ink from the ink tank to the ink jet head. The ink suction pump operates to suck the ink from the ink tank or to suck the ink from the ink tank when a recording operation is not being carried out. On the other hand, the ink supply pump supplies the ink from the ink tank to the ink jet head during recording and also supplies the ink from the ink tank to the ink jet head when recording is stopped. In the above-mentioned ink jet recording device, when the ink suction pump is operating, a driving force is applied to the ink supply pump to drive the ink supply pump. When the ink supply pump is operated, the ink is supplied from the ink tank to the ink jet head through the pump mechanism. In the pump mechanism in which the ink tank is directly connected to the ink jet head, it has been already proposed to utilize a pump having a structure in which the ink from the ink tank is taken into the ink jet head from the ink tank to supply the ink from the ink tank to the ink jet head through the pump mechanism (U.S. Pat. No. 4,771,295 and U.S. Pat. No. 4,771,296). It has also been already proposed to remove bubbles from the ink which is supplied to the ink jet head from the ink tank through the pump mechanism (U.S. Pat. No. 4,771,296). Gallantry Cross, Bir el Auf (Egypt) The Gallantry Cross, Bir el Auf (, ; also: Km 97 cross) is the middle step on the Egyptian honours list of military decorations. It is awarded to military personnel who have saved the life of another while in combat. The Egyptian government medal list states that the gallantry cross of Bir el Auf can be awarded to any Egyptian military unit (Egyptian Army, Navy, Air Force or otherwise) of any rank. There is also provision for wear of gallantry crosses
